Plot details emerge in mayoral bribery

Corruption. N.Y. officials allegedly schemed to impact 2013 mayoral race.

Prosecutors charged New York state Sen. Malcolm Smith and Queens Councilman Dan Halloran yesterday with wire fraud and bribery, which could carry a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation said the alleged plots, which included cash handed over outside a Manhattan restaurant on Valentine's Day, were targeted toward Smith's wishes to be the Republican candidate for mayor.

"Sen. Malcolm Smith tried to bribe his way to a shot at Gracie Mansion," said Manhattan U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara. "Councilman Halloran essentially quarterbacked that drive."

The FBI accuses Halloran of receiving about $20,500 in bribes to be the intermediary between Smith and New York county Republican leaders.

During the scheming, Halloran said, according to the FBI, "That's politics. It's all about how much. … You can't do anything without the f—ing money."

According to the documents, Smith said about the payments: "Let's just say they screwed you and me and said, you know, 'I'm not doing anything.' … When you screw somebody over money like that … you're looking over your shoulder all the rest of your life."

Others accused

Details were released about others involved.

- Smith allegedly arranged for about $40,000 to be paid to Republican county leaders Vincent Tabone and Joseph Savino.
- Agents arrested the mayor and deputy mayor of Rockland County's Village of Spring Valley, accusing them of receiving financial benefits for official acts.

Status symbol. Much coveted 212 area code may go nationwide

Some New Yorkers are not happy about a petition by phone service provider Vonage that seeks to infringe on their iconic 212 area code, according to a report from the New York Post.

The Vonage petition to the Federal Communications Commission seeks to access unused 212 numbers for national use, which would sever the connection between area codes and geographic location.

Coveted 212 phone numbers generally only become available when users move or die, when businesses fail or when carriers go under.

Jail. Upper East Side 'pimp' sentenced to 62 years in prison

Donnell Baines, a purported pimp running a prostitution ring in the Upper East Side, was sentenced in Manhattan Supreme Court to 62 years in prison, the NY Post reported.

Baines insisted the women working for him were happy, pointing to the fact that they continued to return to him, despite allegations that he beat and raped them.

He kept at least four women, including a 16-year-old, in his East 77th Street home, but said he was only operating a Webcam pornography service, according to the Post.

House where Biggie raised is up for sale

Childhood home. The Brooklyn home where Notorious B.I.G. got his chops is being sold.

Times are a-changing, Biggie.

"Call the crib, same number same 'hood. It's all good," Biggie rhymed in one of his most popular songs, "Juicy."

The 'hood, though, is not quite the same.

What Notorious B.I.G. once referred to as his "one-room shack" is now being sold for $725,000.

Before he became one of music's most loved rappers, Christopher Wallace lived at 226 St. James Place, apartment 3L, in the Bed-Stuy area of Brooklyn.

That apartment is listed as a "three-bedroom plus den/office condominium" that was renovated years ago while preserving traditional styling.

New York magazine's Daily Intelligencer asked listing agent Judith Lief if she knew the condo's significance in music.

"You must be kidding," she said. She added that she didn't want the apartment's past to affect its future and that "very lovable people" own the place now.

Politics. Lhota calls Quinn's inspector general plan reckless

Republican mayoral candidate Joe Lhota has blasted City Council Speaker Christine Quinn's plan to implement an NYPD inspector general, calling her actions "reckless and dangerous."

Lhota, the former head of the MTA, said that an inspector general would "handcuff" the NYPD and called on Quinn to withdraw her support for the bill, The Daily News reports.

He told reporters that the NYPD has enough oversight, and adding an inspector general would be reckless behavior at a time when there has been an uptick in certain crimes in the city.

A spokesman for Quinn said Lhota does not know what he is talking about.

"The bill that the speaker supports will do nothing — not one thing — to limit the police department's ability to do their job," said Jamie McShane.

Lhota also said that he would not put a stop to the department's controversial stop-and-frisk policy, but that police officers should have more training when it came to using the tactic.

Police oversight

City Council is mulling a bill to create an inspector general for the NYPD.

- Mayor Michael Bloomberg says that the move would be "disastrous."
- Comptroller John Liu said he supported an inspector general, but later backtracked.

NRA funds proposal for armed guards

School safety. Under a proposal funded by the NRA, every U.S. school would have armed, trained personnel.

A study funded by the National Rifle Association released yesterday proposes that armed personnel be stationed in every U.S. school in response to December's school massacre in Newtown, Conn.

The proposal of the National School Shield Task Force also includes security accords between schools and law enforcement, an online safety assessment tool for schools, state safety standards and improved federal coordination for school safety.

Asa Hutchinson, the panel's director, said having a trained and armed security officer or staff member in each school was a key element of the proposal.

"Obviously, we believe they will make a difference in the various layers that make up school safety," Hutchinson, a former congressman, said at a news conference held under heavy security.

Security officers and staffers would need 40 to 60 hours of training that would cost $800 to $1,000 each.

UN approves first global arms trade treaty

The 193-nation U.N. General Assembly overwhelmingly approved yesterday the first-ever treaty on global arms trade that seeks to regulate the $70 billion international business in conventional arms ranging from light weapons to battle tanks and warships.

There were 154 votes in favor, three against and 23 abstentions.

Iran, Syria and North Korea last week prevented a treaty-drafting conference at U.N. headquarters from reaching the required consensus to adopt the treaty. That left delegations that support it no choice but to turn to a General Assembly vote to adopt it.

The Iranian, Syrian and North Korean delegations cast the sole votes against the treaty. REUTERS

Terrorism. McCain: US wants to help fight al Qaeda in Mali

The United States will seek ways that it can assist French and African forces fighting al Qaeda-linked rebels in Mali, U.S. Sen. John McCain said yesterday during a visit to the West African country.

France launched a military offensive in Mali in January against Islamist militants threatening the capital.

That drove the insurgents out of the towns they had already seized, but they have since hit back with both suicide attacks and guerrilla-style raids.

Western powers are concerned that Mali's vast and lawless Saharan desert could become a launchpad for international militant attacks. REUTERS

Nuclear threats. KCNA: All civilian, military nuclear activities to resume.

North Korea said on Tuesday it would revive a mothballed nuclear reactor able to produce bomb-grade plutonium, but stressed it was seeking a deterrent capacity and did not repeat recent threats to attack South Korea and the United States.

United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said the North Korean crisis had gone too far and appealed for dialogue and negotiation to resolve the situation.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, said another guided-missile destroyer had taken position in the western Pacific to assist with missile defense, as tensions with North Korea rise.

The crisis flared after Pyongyang was hit with U.N. sanctions for conducting a third nuclear test in February, followed by joint military drills between the United States and South Korea that North Korea viewed as "hostile." REUTERS

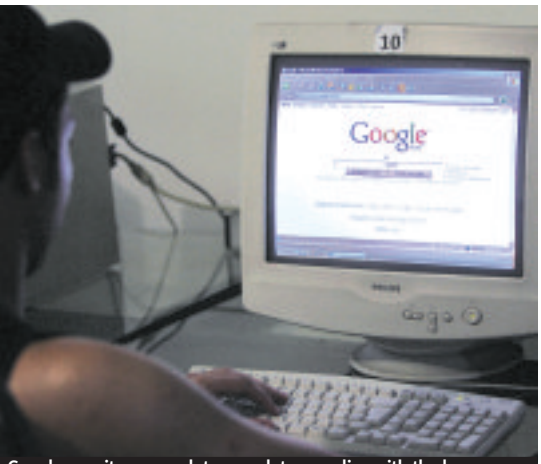
European states take aim at Google privacy



Google says its approach to user data complies with the law.
GETTY IMAGES

Quoted

"Regulators in six states have begun the process of looking at penalties, and each must now act based on national law."

Isabelle Falque-Pierrotin, CNIL's president, in an interview

Data. EU regulators see policy as 'high risk' to user privacy.

European regulators moved a step closer to penalizing Google for the way it handles user data after the search engine giant refused to change its privacy policy.

France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain and Britain said yesterday they began a process to decide if Google's policy introduced in March 2012 broke national laws.

Google consolidated 60 privacy policies into one last year and started combining data collected on individual users across its services, such as YouTube, Gmail and social network Google+. It gave users no means to opt out.

Twenty-nine European data protection regulators began a joint inquiry as a result.

The inquiry, led by the French privacy protection group CNIL, found in October that Google's new policy posed a "high risk" to the privacy of individuals, although it stopped short of declaring it illegal.

The regulators gave Google until February to propose changes, but the search engine giant did not make any after a March 19 meeting with national regulators.

The six countries have the power to impose fines on Google, but each must go through a local inquiry to determine that a wrong had been committed under national law even after the European joint position published in October. REUTERS

Apology. Sorry Apple gets respect in China after tabloid trial

With its rare apology, Apple Inc. went from pariah to praiseworthy in the eyes of China's state-controlled media, a lesson for other foreign firms not to underestimate the speed and power of the government press.

After coming under near-daily media assault for the past two weeks and facing the threat of penalties from two Chinese government bureaus, Apple apologized to Chinese consumers on Monday for poor communication over its warranty policy and said it will change the terms for some of its iPhones sold in China.

The Chinese newspapers that threw brickbats at Apple a few days ago have since changed their tune.

The Foreign Ministry praised Apple for "conscientiously" responding to consumers' demands.

"We approve of what Apple said," spokesman Hong Lei told reporters during a daily news briefing yesterday.

Only last week, the People's Daily issued a scathing editorial on Apple's return policy, saying the popular smartphone maker was filled with "unparalleled arrogance". REUTERS

N.J. law bans children from tanning beds

Tanning beds. New Jersey law puts restrictions on children younger than 17.

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie signed a bill into law yesterday banning children under 17 from using commercial tanning beds, a move stemming from the case of a local woman accused of taking her 5-year-old daughter into a tanning booth.

Christie said that while he does not favor government regulation of small business, the new law was important for protecting the safety of minors.

"Governmental regulation of the private sector should always be carefully scrutinized, and sparingly adopted," he said. "The new restrictions imposed by this bill followed a ... reported incident of a parent bringing a minor child into a tanning facility." REUTERS

Restructuring. Pope to review Vatican bureaucracy and scandal-ridden bank

Officials said the new pope might set up a committee to advise him on possible changes to the Vatican's financial structure. GETTY IMAGES

Pope Francis, who has said he wants the Catholic Church to be a model of austerity and honesty, could restructure or even close the Vatican's scandal-ridden bank as part of a broad review of its troubled bureaucracy, Vatican sources say.

Francis, who inherited a church mired in scandals over priests' sexual abuse of children and the leak of confidential documents alleging corruption and infighting in the Vatican's central administration, is mulling his options as he sets the tone for a reformed and humbler Holy See.

One of the tests of his papacy will be what he does about the bank which has regularly damaged the Vatican's image over three decades and faces growing calls for reform.

Last year a European anti-money laundering body found that the bank — formally called the Institute for Works of Religion and known by the Italian acronym IOR — had failed to meet some of its standards on fighting financial crimes.

"Certainly if the pope wants to, he can close the IOR," said a senior Vatican official, a prelate who has years of experience of directly dealing with the bank. The future of the IOR was one of main issues Francis would have to confront now that the whirlwind of his surprise election was slowing, he said.

Any significant reforms of the IOR would not come for some time and would probably be made after changes at the Secretariat of State, the central church department which was at the centre of a "Vatileaks" scandal that rocked the Holy See last year. REUTERS

William shakedown

Shakespeare – tax dodger, profiteer

He may be regarded as one of the finest exponents of the English language, but there was a darker side to William Shakespeare, according to new research.

He was a tax dodger and was threatened with jail for hoarding crops during a severe shortage, according to academics at the University of Aberystwyth in Wales.

He was also accused of profiteering by selling hoarded food to neighbors at inflated prices during crop failures.

Lead researcher Dr. Jane Archer said that for a 15-year period Shakespeare bought and hoarded grain, malt and barley, and sold them for inflated profits during times of shortage.

The research found that Shakespeare "pursued those who could not (or would not) pay him in full for these staples and used the profits to further his own money-lending activities." METRO

Our Fibrex® material is 2X STRONGER THAN VINYL

Choosing the proper window material is everything.

Even in normal temperatures, vinyl windows can warp, lose whatever energy efficiency they once had, and invite drafts and leaks.

Significant home improvements are supposed to last, but can you imagine the expense and frustration of replacing your windows a second time, after just a couple of years?

We custom-build our windows from our own, patented material called Fibrex®. Why did we make our Fibrex® material twice as strong as vinyl? To serve homeowners who only want to replace their windows once.

Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Neil Patrick Harris is on quite the adventure, Jim Carrey feels appreciated, and Lena Dunham is feeling the march of time.

@ActuallyNPH: My b'day is 6/15. @Davidburtka threw a surprise party for me on Saturday -blown away. I'm now on some lengthy treasure hunt that is unreal!

@JimCarrey: I get it. Your love for me is unconditional. The message couldn't be clearer!

@lenadunham: Sad day. Realized I'm old enough that my go-to April Fools "I'm Pregnant!" is no longer that disturbing.

Khloe Kardashian & Lamar Odom charity scandal

On the spectrum of not good things, this ranks pretty much at the top: Lamar Odom and Khloe Kardashian's charity for kids with cancer looks like it's a scam. That's right: They are fleecing kids with cancer. The only thing worse than swindling cancer-stricken children? There is nothing worse. (Maybe scamming orphans with AIDS and/or cancer, but really, that's it.)

A new report by ESPN says that the charity, Cathy's Kids, which started in 2004 in honor of Odom's mother, has raised $2.2 million, but not one cent has gone to cancer-related causes. Instead, it has gone to the charity's executive, Jerry DeGregorio, who was the best man in Odom's wedding, and two youth basketball teams. When approached by ESPN, Odom brushed off the allegations with, "It's my money."

Actually, nope. It's not.

Lohan jokes that she is pregnant

Lindsay Lohan made a last-minute decision to stay in Brazil this week, making her way to the airport for a flight back to New York only to opt out of getting on the plane, according to E! News. She reportedly checked into the Emiliano Hotel. "She's staying on her own dime," a source says. "She is staying against everyone's advice." Lohan's promotional trip to Brazil for a denim company was to be followed by a trip to NYC before heading to L.A. for the Coachella Music Festival and then 90 days of court-ordered rehab. Lohan also pulled an April Fools' prank on Twitter, posting, "It's official. Pregnant..." and drawing shocked reactions. Maybe her fans didn't realize it was a joke because, on the East Coast at least, it was no longer April 1.

'Finding Dory' to hit theaters in 2015

Nemo was found, but what about Dory, his funny and forgetful friend? It was announced yesterday that "Finding Dory" will be released in theaters on Nov. 25, 2015, by Pixar. "I have waited for this day for a long, long, long, long, long, long time," said Ellen DeGeneres, who voiced the blue tang fish in the original film, "Finding Nemo." "I'm not mad it took this long. I know the people at Pixar were busy creating 'Toy Story 16.' But the time they took was worth it. The script is fantastic. And it has everything I loved about the first one: It's got a lot of heart, it's really funny, and the best part is — it's got a lot more Dory."

Mayer zips his lips (for once)

John Mayer seems to have turned over a new leaf when it comes to dishing on ex-girlfriends. In a recent interview with Ellen DeGeneres, he did not rise to her attempts to discuss his split from Katy Perry. "It was a very private relationship going in, it was a private relationship during and it's a private relationship still," Mayer said. "I'm on the same journey as everyone else. Coupling is a tricky thing."

Berry, Martinez get in paparazzi fight

Halle Berry and fiance Olivier Martinez had a pretty rough homecoming after their Hawaiian vacation when Martinez got into a bit of a scuffle with paparazzi outside LAX, according to TMZ. Martinez allegedly kicked a photographer in the leg and wrist as he, Berry and Berry's daughter Nahla attempted to exit the airport. Once Nahla was safely in their waiting SUV, Martinez reportedly stormed back to kick the photographer again before being pulled away by Berry.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Playwrights Horizons' 'The Flick' fails to ignite

Review. The play's truth is unassailable, but real life in real time can be a real drag.

Matthew Maher, left, and Aaron Clifton Moten star in "The Flick," playing through April 7. / JOAN MARCUS

Glacial pace notwithstanding, there's a lot to be said for "The Flick" at Playwrights Horizons. The three-hour production has a likeable plot with clever flourishes, offbeat characters and excellent acting. Its downfall is that both playwright and director have mistakenly confused realistic with real, resulting in a theatrical experience that's true to life but deadly in its lack of momentum.

Baker and Gold meticulously detail the workaday exploits of Sam (Matthew Maher) and new recruit Avery (Aaron Clifton Moten) as they clean up between shows at the Flick, a single-screen movie house. Sometimes joined by projectionist Rose (Louisa Krause), they reveal themselves haltingly. Sam desperately pines for Rose, who in turn is drawn to Avery. Avery, who attempted suicide a year ago, hesitates but ultimately joins Sam and Rose as they skim the theater's take every night for "meal money." And Rose learns that the theater is about to be sold.

"The Flick" picks up in the second act, but the overall pace makes "The Three Sisters" look like it's on speed. The plot achieves an emotional crescendo as Avery reaches out to his co-workers, only to be shot down. But it's too little, too late. The purposeful monotony preceding it deflates its impact.

SMALL PACKAGES, GOOD THINGS

Nintendo's 3DS has gone from a lackluster launch to being another popular entry in their dominance of portable console gaming. Titles hit store shelves on the regular and their digital marketplace is inching close to Apple territory. Let's review some games you can play on the toilet.

Mario's brother is back.
/ NINTENDO

'Luigi's Mansion: Dark Moon'

System: 3DS
Company: Nintendo
Grade: ●●●●●

Ah, good ole Luigi. Mario's brother has gotten the short shrift for 30 years. He's the cowardly one, the klutzy one, the one who is constantly told, "Just be more like your brother!" He's the everyman. Well, this regular Joe finally has a 3DS game to call his own and it is one of the system's best titles. It's a spooky and hilarious ghost-hunting sim set inside a series of haunted mansions. Every inch of this game oozes polish and charm, from the way Luigi hums along with the theme music to the mansions themselves, which are beautifully rendered and chock full of secrets.

'Harmoknight'

System: 3DS
Company: Game Freak/ Nintendo
Grade: ●●●●○

Harmoknight is a unique take on music games, pairing the rhythm-based gameplay of something like PaRappa the Rapper with sidescrolling action. Essentially, it's like a Mario title you control by pushing buttons along to the beat. The graphics are simple but the game boasts a striking amount of content. There are hidden areas, boss battles and even guest appearances by your old friend Pokemon to keep you busy for hours.

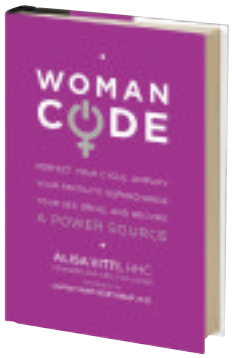
Caught in hormonal hell?

Is this you every month? It doesn't have to be, says Alisa Vitti.
GETTY IMAGES

Health. Your period shouldn't cause you misery, expert says.

If you thought PMS, bloating and zits were all just the lowlights of being a woman, Alisa Vitti would like you to think again.

"What's normal is to feel great all month, to have natural conception, not to have postpartum depression," says Vitti, a women's health expert and the author of "WomanCode: Perfect Your Cycle, Amplify Your Fertility, Supercharge Your Sex Drive and Become a Power Source." "What's normal is a sex drive that increases as you age. What's normal is a metabolism that's helping you maintain your healthy weight. Anything that's not that isn't normal."



If you're often in hormonal hell, Vitti has a plan to get you back on track — and it starts with your diet.

MEREDITH ENGEL
meredith.engel@metro.us

What to avoid

Soy, specifically soy protein isolate: "Most soy products are highly concentrated in soy protein isolate," Vitti says, "which is full of concentrated estrogen and exacerbates hormonal symptoms." If you must have soy, choose fermented options, including miso paste and tempeh, in moderation. Tofu is OK in small quantities, as long as it's organic and GMO-free.

Dairy: "The casein in dairy has been shown to build up a plaque on the small intestine," Vitti says, which blocks the absorption of vital micronutrients. Concerned about calcium? Vitti says that on her plan, eliminating dairy also means adding in more foods that are good sources of calcium, like kale, bok choy and sunflower seeds.

Gluten: "Wheat-based products cause such inflammation in the intestine," she says.

What to load up on

Fermented foods: "[They] provide the body with probiotics, which help you absorb more nutrients."

Sweet potatoes: "I love them for the vitamin A to help with your liver."

Pasture-fed eggs (with the yolks): "They help the body make progesterone, which keeps PMS symptoms away."

Avocados: "[They have] EFAs that keep our hormones really, really healthy," Vitti says.

How to stay safe on your bike commute to work

Tips. If your wheels aren't on the subway or bus, make sure you're riding the right way.

Don't forget your helmet! / GETTY IMAGES, PURESTOCK

With spring officially upon us, legions of urban commuters are beginning to shed their quilted coats and searching for excuses to spend more time outside. Commuting by bicycle can be a great way to savor the sunshine and jump-start your fitness routine while being eco-friendly. Inexperienced city cyclists might feel intimidated by busy streets and speedy drivers at first, but it is easy to gain confidence quickly while navigating a city on two wheels. After more than a decade of riding and working with bicycles in Tampa and NYC, bike mechanic Max Boyajian is familiar with the challenges cyclists face in crowded areas. He shared a few tips for starting out as a bike commuter.

Tip

Pass the parked cars

Drivers might not check for bikes after they park, meaning they could open their doors into an oncoming cyclist. PS: Cyclists have the right to ride in the center of a lane.

Fill 'er up

If a bike hasn't been used through the winter, the tires will need to be refilled. If you don't own your own pump, almost every bike shop has free air available for passing cyclists.

Keep calm

Even if they are following the rules of the road, city cyclists are bound to get honked at by irritated drivers. Don't let it rattle you, and don't provoke drivers unnecessarily. "You've got to learn how to be honked at," Boyajian says.

Plan for the weather

Waterproof outerwear can protect you from rain. Keep your clothes professional-looking by installing fenders onto your wheels. "They might look dumb, but they're better than a strip of mud across your back," Boyajian says.

Layout not starstruck enough

Since when does the picture of the entertainment writer rank as being bigger than anyone else's? They don't even do that on Page Six, so why would you? Granted, I really enjoy her column, but I'd much rather see the photos of the celebs that go along with her stories rather than her (no offense).

Take care of yourself or the feds will do it for you

RE: "IF YOU CAN'T BEAT 'EM, JOIN 'EM," (METRO, APRIL 2)
So letter writer Joseph Dupont wants to circumvent the Affordable Care Act by not getting health insurance until he is ill. Sounds to me like his aspiration is to be a moocher that he and his fellow conservatives rail against. Remember, the idea of the individual mandate was a conservative idea to require people to be responsible and not shift costs onto their fellow citizens. It is only because President Barack Obama promoted the ACA that they think personal responsibility is inappropriate and somehow will "destroy the nation."

Inventory plummeted during the first quarter of 2013. / GETTY IMAGES, EYECANDY IMAGES RF

Manhattan apt prices hold steady in Q1

Real Estate. New developments went into contract 52.9 percent quicker than in 2012.

Manhattan apartment prices held steady in the first quarter of 2013, while inventory continued to plummet dramatically during the same period, according to a quarterly market report released yesterday by Douglas Elliman. The average sale price in the quarter was $1.35 million, rising just 1 percent year-over-year, the report said. Overall, 2,457 units were sold in the first quarter of 2013, up 6.3 percent from the first quarter of 2012 when 2,311 units sold, according to the report. The median sales price increased 5.9 percent year-over-year, to $820,555, marking the highest such increase since the collapse of Lehman Brothers in September 2008, with the exception of two quarters in 2010 that were skewed by the federal home buyer tax credit, said Jonathan Miller, president of Miller Samuel and the author of the Elliman report. "This is what happens when you take both hands and choke off supply by the throat," Miller said. Indeed, Manhattan inventory fell 34.4 percent year-over-year to 4,960 units from 7,560; quarter-over-quarter, inventory increased by 4.4 percent. But in the luxury market — representing the priciest 10 percent of properties — inventory was down just 15.4 percent to 1,025 units, and up 7.6 percent quarter-over-quarter, according to the report.

$1.35 million

The average sales price in the first quarter was $1.35 million, rising just 1 percent year-over-year, the report says.

The big business of dressing the baby bump

Is Kim Kardashian launching a new maternity leather line? We wouldn't be surprised. / CHRIS MCKAY, WIREIMAGE

Forget jeans with an elasticized waist when you can wear a pencil skirt. / JB LACROIX, WIREIMAGE

Fashion. Never mind comfort — Kim Kardashian's maternity wardrobe is an exercise in branding.

Just when you thought her maternity choices couldn't look any more uncomfortable, Kim Kardashian went shopping in a body-con dress, its leather stretched to the absolute limit, and stilettos — an outfit that would make even the average not-pregnant woman look like she's trying too hard. But before we get into Mother Kimye's pregnancy style, let's establish these facts:

1. The Kardashians are unbeatable at the game of being famous for being famous.

2. The Kardashians have been known to mine their personal lives for reality TV and publicity in general.

3. Kim is a Kardashian.

Now that we've got that out of the way, let's look at that leather. The tighter the squeeze around Kim's bump and the higher the heels, the more we talk about it. It's a pop culture moment that advances the plotline of Kim's celebrity as clearly as an episode of "Keeping Up with the Kardashians."

The average pregnant woman dresses for comfort. But now, the average famous pregnant woman dresses strategically, as the bump becomes another opportunity for personal branding (Jessica Simpson), record sales (Beyonce) and public obsession (Miranda Kerr). Yes, Kim claims that flats hurt her back and that heels are the most comfortable shoe for her. But the tape wrapped around her feet says otherwise. It's not hard to imagine the ways she'll push this idea further as her final trimester approaches. What next? Hot pants and a bustier? Somewhere, her marketing team is probably taking notes.

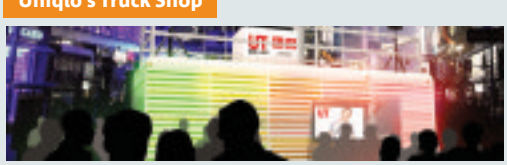
Uniqlo's Truck Shop



On Saturdays throughout April, Uniqlo is getting behind the wheels of its mobile pop-up shop, which also plays double duty as a stage. Entertainers, including hip-hop artist Danny Brown, will perform on top of the truck in the Meatpacking District's Gansevoort Plaza while shoppers thumb through the wares inside. For details, visit Uniqlo on Facebook.

Cano, Jay-Z join forces in Roc Nation agency

Who's next?

Robinson Cano is just the first athlete to join Jay-Z's Roc Nation group. He will be far from the last to want to jump on the bandwagon with the marketing maven/rap genius. A host of names are already being floated as the next to join. Metro takes a look at a couple possibilities:

- Victor Cruz, Giants
  The most-mentioned name as the next client to jump aboard Roc Nation is Giants wide receiver, and restricted free agent, Victor Cruz. The Pro Bowl receiver just signed with CAA, making a switch to Jay-Z's wing a natural choice.
- Alex Rodriguez, Yankees
  Who better to rehabilitate your image than Jay-Z? Rodriguez already had a messy divorce from Scott Boras and does have a relationship with Jay-Z, including partnering up for charity work.

Robinson Cano is the face of Jay-Z's new sports agency group.
GETTY IMAGES

MLB. The Yankees second baseman has ditched his agent to join Sean Carter's empire.

Robinson Cano has traded in the ultimate deal-maker for the ultimate in star power.

Cano has fired power agent Scott Boras and will join Jay-Z's new agency, Roc Nation. He is the first athlete to join the agency group, a part of Creative Artists Agency. Rapper Jay-Z will handle Cano's marketing while CAA agents will likely handle contract negotiations.

"At this point in my career, I am ready to take a more active role in my endeavors on and off the field," Cano said in a statement. "I am confident that the pairing of Roc Nation Sports and CAA Sports will be essential in helping me accomplish my short- and long-term goals."

Cano is in the final year of a six-year, $57 million contract, and extension talks had stalled prior to the start of the season.

Roc on

"Because of my love of sports, it was a natural progression to form a company where we can help top athletes in various sports."

Jay-Z, on starting his new Roc Nation Sports agency group

You must love me

Yankee fans can rejoice

Yesterday was a great day for Yankees fans. No one signs with Brooklyn's finest to go join the Kansas City Royals.

The protracted contract talks between Robinson Cano and the Yankees just got simpler for general manager Brian Cashman and managing partner Hal Steinbrenner.

There is no chance Cano, Jay-Z's newest client, signs with another team after yesterday's news.

Don't worry, the All-Star second baseman will still get enough money to buy a plum penthouse right next to Jay and Bey if he wants, but don't try to spin Cano and Jay-Z's partnership as anything other than a blockbuster win for the Yankees.

CBS Sports' Jon Heyman quoted the team, giving the old cliche "we'll see" after news of the deal broke early yesterday. Don't be fooled, though — Cashman would've been doing cartwheels if not for his surgically repaired right ankle.

Cano signed his deal with Jay-Z yesterday. / TWITTER, @ROCNATION

Cano was reportedly looking for a 10-year, $200 million deal in line with those signed by Albert Pujols and Joey Votto last year. Or at least Scott Boras was. Giving blowhard Boras the axe was a clear sign Cano wasn't interested in playing for $20 million a year in Arizona or Milwaukee. Players for the Brewers don't sign multimillion-dollar deals with Ford.

All Cano has to do is ask his fellow double-play partner Derek Jeter.

Jagr goes to Bruins

The ageless Jaromir Jagr has been traded to the Bruins. Jagr, 41, made his debut in 1990 and yet was still a hot commodity on the NHL trade market. Jagr signed with the Stars this offseason after spending 2011-12 with the Flyers. He had 14 goals and 12 assists in 34 games with the Stars. The trade deadline comes today at 4 p.m.

Nets West Coast trip ending on low note

NBA. Brooklyn is pleased, if not thrilled, with its road-trip success.

Deron Williams and the Nets are 4-3 on their road trip, but started 4-1. / NBAE, GETTY IMAGES

Not including the Nets' current two-week absence from the Barclays Center due to the presence of the circus, there have been 30 road trips in the NBA consisting of at least five games.

During those trips, teams have posted winning records just seven times, and not surprisingly the best performances have been achieved by NBA elite such as Miami and San Antonio.

The Nets have a chance to enter that minority with a win tonight in Cleveland (7 p.m., YES).

"We were above .500," Deron Williams said after the team made a brief stop in East Rutherford, N.J., for practice. "We lost to three playoff teams and two of the best home teams that there are in the game, so those are two hard games to win at the end of a road trip. But we wish we would have finished a little bit better."

"We want to finish on an upswing and the seven games we played on the trip, we didn't finish on an upswing," interim head coach P.J. Carlesimo said. "We were on a pretty good upswing, and we kind of took a couple steps back."

Hurtin' Joe

Johnson practices

Joe Johnson described his sore left heel and right quad as "great." However, the combination of playing the Bulls on Thursday and how he feels Wednesday morning may factor into whether he will suit up.

"I know it's a back-to-back," he said. "So it's kind of pick what game you want to play, basically, so we'll see."
